Short biography

Yeneneh Belayneh, born and raised in Ethiopia, has degrees in Biology majoring in Crop Protection/IPM with emphasis on Entomology. His PhD work was on ecotoxicology particularly environmental impacts of pesticides in the agricultural ecosystems. After a stint as university teacher and researcher in Addis Ababa, Belayneh's later career has been in senior technical advisory positions in different Bureaus and Offices at the United States Agency for International Development (USAID) based in Washington, D.C.

He has traveled extensively on advisory, training, and on environmental assessment missions, and he has executed monitoring, evaluation and field-based assessments for USAID.

Belayneh's major contribution has been related to issues relevant to the environmental and human health impacts of pesticides and other chemicals. His current position is as Senior Technical Adviser in Pesticides and Pests as well as a project Manager for USAID's Office Foreign Disaster Assistance. He also assumes a faculty position at the University of Maryland's Eastern Shore campus.
