

The film "Contagion" directed by Steven Soderberg were shown exclusively for high school students in 2013 at a cinema in Uppsala. The movie Contagion documents the spread of a virus, attempts by medical researchers and public health officials to identify and contain the disease, the loss of social order in a pandemic, and finally the search for and introduction of a vaccine.

More than 300 students from high schools in Uppsala queuing outside the cinema Spegeln.

After the film, there was a panel debate and discussion with a veterinarian, medical doctor and an ecologist.

